Course Overview

The Human Rights in the Field course by Magna Skills is a practical, hands-on training programme designed to equip professionals working in government institutions, NGOs, humanitarian agencies, and development projects with the skills to apply human rights principles in real-world field environments.

Unlike purely theoretical human rights courses, this programme focuses on operational realities—including field missions, community engagement, monitoring and reporting, protection of vulnerable groups, conflict-sensitive programming, and ethical decision-making under pressure. Participants will gain practical tools to identify human rights risks, respond to violations, and integrate a human rights-based approach (HRBA) into projects, policies, and service delivery.

The course is tailored for African development contexts, drawing on regional case studies, donor requirements, and institutional realities faced by practitioners working in fragile, post-conflict, and resource-constrained environments.

Course Outcomes

- Understand and apply core human rights principles in field operations, programmes, and policies
- Identify human rights risks and violations during fieldwork, service delivery, and project implementation

Apply a Human Rights-Based Approach (HRBA) to planning, monitoring, and evaluation

- Strengthen ethical decision-making and accountability when operating in sensitive or high-risk environments
- Develop practical strategies for protection, advocacy, documentation, and reporting of human rights issues
