Course Overview

Environmental and climate teams require timely data, clear analysis and effective reporting. AI can support climate risk analysis, environmental monitoring, disaster preparedness and sustainability planning.

This Magna Skills course explores AI applications in climate risk analysis, environmental monitoring, disaster preparedness, sustainability reporting, urban planning and natural resource management.

Participants will learn how to use AI-supported tools to improve planning, reporting and response strategies while considering ethics, data quality and institutional responsibilities.

Course Outcomes

Course Outcomes

1. Understand how AI supports environmental management, climate planning and sustainability reporting.
2. Use AI tools to analyze climate risks, vulnerability information and environmental data.
3. Improve disaster preparedness, early warning communication and response planning.
4. Support urban planning, natural resource management and environmental project monitoring.
5. Apply responsible AI practices that consider ethics, data limitations and community impact.
